In a dark, dingy back room on the third floor of a ramshackle brick building, 230 Walnut street, Fred Gille, a veteran ex-soldier, met his death in a frightful manner, Sunday night, at the hands of two strangers and robbers, supposed to be August Stutz and

Joe Boppel, alias Mueller. For nondescript

the murder and robbery, for both crimes were committed, outranks any killing reported in the city for a long time. Gille was lured to the room where Gille lay his players, then choked to death and relieved of his money and whatever other valuables he may have had in his possession.

His slayers, it is supposed by the street wise men, had no trouble getting the

REPORT THEY HAVE BEEN APPOINTED POLICE COMMISSIONERS—COAL OIL INSPECTOR.

A report reached the city from Jefferson not be served without social spreads, Ministers and Ambassadors may as well be kept at home.

ENOUGH is known about the Russian treaty to secure its condemnation by the people, but the hesitancy of the Senate to let it be published and to have it publicly discussed indicates that the worst has not yet come to light.

REAL estate is lively in Jerusalem and there are a good many transactions at high prices. There is some doubt, however, about the real progress of the place, as the liquor tax brings in only $1,820 a year. Has the Holy City a Ziegenhein?

The news of the election will be bulletined at this office to-night. Special efforts are making to have the count of ballots made as rapidly as possible and, as usual, the public will find the first and most accurate information of the returns in the POST-DISPATCH bulletins.

SENATOR HOAR is opposed to the election of Senators by the people of the States because, among other reasons, "it creates new temptations to fraud." In other words, it is easier to buy a whole community than a legislature. The old man is an unconscious humorist.

THE EXCISE COMMISSIONER.

The statement that Gov. Stone's intention to appoint Clarence Hoblitzelle as Excise Commissioner had been "given out at Jefferson City," was on its face an anticlimax, and put forth without any authority from Gov. Stone himself.

He may appoint Hoblitzelle after the election. He may appoint Judge McCaffrey, should the latter be defeated by Ziegenhein for Collector. He may appoint any one of a half a dozen other men whose names have been presented to him with strong backing. But it is extremely improbable that he has promised the appointment to anybody.

The Governor has three months in which to select a man for this office before the law goes into effect. The appointee will be removable at the pleasure of the Governor, who is thus made personally responsible for the proper administration of the office, and will, therefore, naturally desire to proceed cautiously and find a man whom he can trust to follow his instructions faithfully, with sound discretion, and without involving the Governor in the scandal of using the license law to control St. Louis politics in his own interest or that of any political ring.

It is common talk in St. Louis, that with the license power in his hands, Ziegenhein has made it worth 10,000 votes to the Republican party in every election, and that the "right sort of man" in control of the license power alone could swing those 10,000 votes over to the Democratic party.

This kind of talk should put a careful Governor on his guard. Any such power in the hands of an Excise Commissioner would make the control of that officer worth an incalculable sum to the noble congregation of political and corporation bosses, who work the city government for the franchises and the booze that can be got out of it.

If Gov. Stone permits any such gang to use the licensing power as a means of controlling our municipal franchise mill through the saloon and brewery vote, he will soon find that they are handling a boomerang and bringing him into discredit without any compensatory benefit to his party.

MAKE THEM DO THE FAIR THING.

The defeat of the Bell Telephone bill gives the city at least a respite from an evil fate. The newly elected Council can now begin at the beginning, compel the company to put the wires underground and exact terms just both to the Bell people and the city.

The first consideration, and the most important, is that of public revenue. The telephone company is granted monopoly privileges by the city, and sheltered from competition. Their investment is absolutely safe, and must be very remunerative. There is no good reason, however, why a company performing a public service should expect anything more from the public than one engaged in a private enterprise. The profit in excess of that prevailing in private business is a value belonging to the people. It is due to the presence of population and grows with the growth of the city. It is in no wise a return to capital or labor, but measures the people's interest in the business. Hence it should be reserved as public revenue instead of being given away to private corporations or individuals. A close study should be made of the various means by which this result can be accomplished, and the one best adapted to the purpose should be selected.

Hardly less important than this is the question of price for the use of telephones. Under the ordinance which passed the Council and which was smothered in the House of Delegates, no limit was put upon the price. The Council believed that the company would do the fair thing. But we ought not to allow a corporation which has fooled the whole country a hundred times another opportunity to fool the people of St. Louis. We cannot trust the Bell company to do the fair thing. In New York where the price was $150 an extravagant and extortionate price by the way—it has been raised to $200 on the plea that the cost of going under ground made the increase necessary. But experts tell us that the cost was only $16 a telephone. This does not justify an increase of $90.

THE opening of the Cherokee Strip is delayed because Secretary Smith has no time to give to public business. His whole attention is absorbed by office-seekers bent on furthering their own private interests.

WHEN the people of the United States pay a Minister or an Ambassador, they do not expect to consider the "social demands" which make his office expensive. If the interests of the country can-

The subscribers must pay the cost, of course, but they should not pay it five or six times a year for an indefinite term. This is what the Bell company did in New York. Are they likely to do better in St. Louis?

The Municipal Assembly will be expected to deal with this matter with as much care and zeal as they would their own private business. The subscribers' interests must be guarded and the revenue possibilities for the city must be thoroughly understood. The telephone company must be forced to do the fair thing by its subscribers and must be content to take a moderate profit on the investment. All in excess of such a return should be secured to the city.

This anti-Harrisonites of Chicago started out a few weeks ago to reform municipal politics by nominating a man for Mayor who was thoroughly respectable, according to Chicago ideas; that is he was worth several million dollars and lived in Prairie avenue. Then all but one of two of the newspapers turned loose on Mr. Harrison and belabored him with abuse seldom heard outside the lowest bar-rooms. The inevitable result has promptly followed. The people were disgusted and called a halt. Harrison is still sturdily fought, but there is less mud thrown. His enemies pay more attention to his public character and less to his private, while his opponent is seen to be destitute of every qualification but respectability—according to the Chicago idea—and has several serious disqualifications. Chicago politics is of no particular interest to outsiders, but it is well for people to bear in mind that success in business procured through a robust commercial conscience is not a guarantee of fitness for public office.

THE French garrotter or his imitator is a most unwelcome addition to the native and naturalized thugs now actively engaged in attempting crimes against life and property in this city. But the horrible crime by which Frederick Gille was robbed and slain in a Walnut street tenement house should be introduced here. The fact that a newspaper clipping describing the most approved mode of garrotting was found in the room, and that clews were carefully left at the scene of the crime indicate that the perpetrators were beginners. Fortunately the clews are valuable and afford a basis for a prompt capture of the suspected men. Their careers as garroters will probably be nipped in the bud.

JUDGE RICKS adheres to his original decision, laying down the broad principle that as a corporation can act only through its officers, agents and servants the mandamus order against the company applies with equal force against all the employees. This is the first step in a mode of legal interpretation intended to tie the "man" to the service of the "master." In other words it is a revival and modernized form of the old doctrine that a laboring man was tied to the soil and could not be dissociated therefrom.

The decision of Judge Rick's does nothing more than open the case of the railroad and their employees. It starts the ball of the labor problem rolling in a new direction and it is impossible to foresee where it will end. The chances are that the battle will only begin when the courts get through interpreting the present law. The final appeal will be made to the people and it would be well for the corporations to use any new powers the courts may give them with wise discretion.

THE boycott is declared a criminal conspiracy. But what about railroad and other corporations, which combine against the public interest? The difference seems to be that the latter are under the "protection of the courts," while the former has to fight its battle in the open.

WHAT is even the fame of a soldier? Here is Berdan, who invented a long-range rifle, and who commanded Uncle Samuel's first sharpshooters in the war between the States, and who at his death is appearing in various daily journals as "Berdan" and "Berdan," possibly some of them even have it "Berdan." Happy is the hero whose name is Smith, Jones or Brown. No telegrapher or typewriter is likely to rob him of his glory.

This middle-aged man in Illinois who goes about with a pair of scissors and suddenly clips off the back hair of the young women of that State, never takes the hair with him, but drops it with the remark, "Now you look prettier." He is doing a great work, and if he isn't preparing for himself a penitentiary lawn-mower cut he may get a good deal of satisfaction out of it.

In hastily drawing her handkerchief to protect her eyes from street dirt, a Chicago railroad lawyer's wife pulled out and dropped a bag containing $4,000 worth of diamonds without noticing her loss. It is remarkable that people with that much wealth do not move to a town where the streets are sprinkled.

Two ministers and two elders in a free fight in a Chicago fashionable church, with a widow at the bottom of the trouble, is truly a spectacle for these Columbian days. It is to be apprehended that the Fair visitors may be drawn from the great show to the Chicago churches if such counter attractions are to be kept up.

A CAPTIOUS little complaint of Paderewski's fingers nails, "which strike the ivory keys with a brittle sound," very disturbing to his auditors. Possibly the Paderewski nails may annoy a few people, but most people lose themselves in contemplation of the Paderewski music.

THREE sets of triplets, two pairs of twins, and two single births are the record of a Pennsylvania wife, but as her aunt is a mother in ten quintuplets, she probably feels a trifle disappointed.

One of the strongest points against the men charged with the Gille murder is the fact that a Globe-Democrat was found in their apartment. Reading the Globe-Democrat through on the eve of an election has started many a man on the downward path.

The Mikado's scheme to make the Japanese stronger by feeding them meat may be a good one, but it can get a supply of the best that most Americans have to chew on he will at least succeed in strengthening their jaws.

THE two Baltimore club men who each ate eleven dozen and three oysters at a sitting are very proud of themselves, but there are chappies of equal capacity in some of the other States.

INSTEAD of cholera remedies Gotham wants something that will knock pneumonia. Unless her pneumonia can be downed the cholera will have little to feed on.

Both Oxen Are Gored.

It may be a nice thing for a board of managers in a given instance to require railroad employees to sign a sort of personal contract with the Government, implied in a renewal of the oath of loyalty to the Constitution that accompanies it. But the case might seem very different if, on the authority and precedent of the same decision, a presidential election were prohibited and enjoined from discharging any of its regular employees, except for incompetency proven beyond peradventure.

The nationalization idea as applied to railroads, in accordance with the Rick's decision, is a very good one and after a comparatively short time it might not be precisely relished by any of the parties to a controversy. But it is perfectly safe to assume that the very loudest complaints and protests would come from the corporations when they saw that the Government was really taking the logical outcome of Rick's decision as nothing less than governmental ownership of every railroad in the land.

Senator Sherman's Discovery.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.
Senator John Sherman has just discovered, what a large number of people knew before, that "the death-knell of the Republican party has been sounded." The result of the presidential election, he declared, is nearly a demand upon the part of the people for a change of men and measures. The successful party must either take heed of this demand by carrying out its pledges to the people, which were so thoroughly and unflinchingly carried out in the election, or four years hence it will be succeeded by some other party.

MEN OF MARK.

CAPT. JOSEPH W. AMAZER of Portsmouth, N. H., commanded the first steambot to ply between that town and the Isle of Shoals. He was a resident of Portsmouth, and he died a few days ago. He was a man of great energy and a man of great courage.

UNITED STATES SENATOR FLETCHER of South Dakota wears top boots and a scraggy beard, and looks more like a granger than any Populist of them all.

THE most noted Chinese doctor in the country has just died in San Francisco. He was Li Po Tai. He came from Canton about 1850 and he was a great success in his profession. He was a man of great energy and a man of great courage.

OR JAMES BRUCE, author of the "American Commonwealth," a recent biographer records that he is a "good fellow, full of genial companionship," that he is a "good fellow," and that he is a "good fellow."

PROF. VITCHEW, the world-famous pathologist, was a ardent politician in his younger years and had many an oratorical tilt with Prince Bismarck. He invented the word "pathology" to designate the fight for culture that raged so violently in Germany some years ago.

THE late Capt. Henry H. Lewis of Baltimore bore a strong cast of physical resemblance to George Washington, whose great-grandfather he was.

CHRISTIAN JOACHIM MOHR, who died recently at Naples, is said to have been the greatest linguist of his day, having been acquainted with sixty languages. He was of Norwegian birth, and was 86 years old at the time of his death.

THE youngest man who can write his name as a Governor is John E. Osborne, the chief executive of Wyoming. He is only 34, a doctor by profession, very good looking, of pleasing address, and went from Vermont to the West some fourteen years ago, though a native of New York.

WOMEN OF THE WORLD.

PROF. GARNER has written from Africa that he has hypnotized a gorilla, and that a pet chimpanzee has fallen in love with his valet.

IT is said that until a year ago the people of the United States had no idea that there was a Mrs. James P. Wadsworth, and that she was a widow.

A BRIDE who has been in the family of Mrs. James P. Wadsworth, Ind., for many years is said to have been used at the marriage of Pocahontas.

MRS. GHO. BRADSHAW, whose death in England is announced, was the widow of the great John G. Bradshaw, whom she had survived for forty years.

RUSSELL HARRISON's 5-year-old daughter has not recovered her health since she had the scarlet fever in the White House, and is now in New York for treatment.

JOHN HOPKINS university will next June, for the first time, confer the title Ph.D. upon a woman. Mrs. Florence Bacon, a Massachusetts girl, will at that time be honored by that institution.

THE Queen of England sets the English dames an example of frugality even on her trips abroad. Several villas near Naples were offered to her at a round rental, but she was so miserly that she refused to accept the offer, and the proprietor, through pride, paid out a considerable sum in repairs to please his royal guest.

ONE of the recent volumes issued by the English Folk-Lore society exhibits the extraordinary erudition of Miss Royle Cox, who after wading through innumerable books and pamphlets in numerous languages, has discovered that the story of "Cinderella" has been told in 845 ways. All of these different versions Miss Cox has printed in the volume referred to. The generally current story of the glass slipper maiden has been known since 1697.

TO MOVE ON CUBA.

A Revolutionary Expedition Fitting Out at Key West.

GLOBALLY WATCHED BY UNITED STATES REVENUE CUTTERS.

Furriers, who have been misled by the Spanish Government, Dr. and Arm. Men for the Invasion—The Lopez Failure—Results of More Recent Reports on the Island.

Key West, Fla., April 4.—The revolutionary expedition against Cuba is about to leave here on its mission. The greatest excitement prevails among the people, while the federal officers are anxious and vigilant. The revolutionary leaders cannot be found, the men in the ranks have been most active in the movement are not to be seen in their usual haunts and there is a general restlessness and mysteriousness characterizing the entire Cuban population. It is regarded as certain that to-night will witness the attempt of the revolutionists to get away. The revenue cutter McLane is here. Her small boats have been equipped for immediate service, her men have been armed to the teeth and everything is in readiness to intercept the revolutionists if they make a start.

The McLane has got steam up ready for pursuit. The commander is being constantly informed by men on shore as to the movements of the revolutionists, but their plans for departure, made during the past month, have been so carefully concealed that it is hard to discover what they are doing or what move they intend to make. It is believed that the federal authorities are fully alive to the knowledge or suspicion of the federal officers of the revolutionists to leave for several days past, and that a call was sent to the Navy Department asking for reinforcements. The statement is made now and not denied that two other revenue cutters have been ordered here and are expected to arrive before another day.

If the revolutionists have heard and believed that the McLane is to be thus reinforced they will undoubtedly hasten their attempt to get away. They at least know that the federal authorities are fully alive to the exigency, for their spies, keen men, with facilities for getting inside information which the authorities have been unable to discover, know of the preparations to prevent their leaving which have been made on board the McLane. They further know that the federal authorities are fully alive to the exigency, for their spies, keen men, with facilities for getting inside information which the authorities have been unable to discover, know of the preparations to prevent their leaving which have been made on board the McLane.

What the exact force of the revolutionists is cannot be stated, but they certainly number between 800 and 400 men. The purpose of their organization, so long kept a mystery, is now known to be the liberation of Cuba from Spanish rule. The revolutionists are about to leave here in a small boat, composed almost entirely of native Cubans. That they have made arrangements for a revolution is a fact, and movement among the people of Cuba simultaneous with their arrival, if they should succeed in getting away from here and to the island, is known.

The fact about to leave here is not unprepared for war. They have been recruited with care for the work which they expect to engage in. They have been drilled until they have been fairly well disciplined, have repeating rifles and abundance of ammunition, and from the start have shown eagerness to undertake the mission for which they enlisted.

At Jacksonville, in this state, the revolutionary movement has a strong foothold. A club was formed here in full compliance with the law in January last numbered almost 1,000 members. Meetings have been held here weekly for some time past and they have been addressed by prominent Cuban patriots and exiles. It is known that the club members are well equipped for the proposed invasion. Gen. Marti, the great leader of the revolution, has been in Key West for some time, and it is under his leadership that the present movement has developed.

The United States government has been apprised of a few days ago of the fact the Cuban patriots had purchased a steam vessel in Philadelphia and had arranged to convey a Cuban expedition against Cuba from this port or from some one of the islands in this vicinity, under the pretext of a port of call, and the United States government has taken steps to prevent the departure of the vessel.

The cutter McLane has been ordered by the Navy Department, with instructions to prevent, at all hazards, the expedition leaving.

It is possible, in view of the precautions taken to prevent the expedition from leaving here, that Gen. Marti may change the point of departure to some of the ports in the Gulf, possibly Charlotte Harbor, which is about 120 miles from this place.

Recent correspondence from Havana gives the following news in relation to the threatened invasion.

The rumors of a possible invasion of this island by an armed body of filibusters from Key West across the straits of Florida, although people are used to such things. Key West, or Cayo Hueso, as the Cubans call it, is only ninety miles across the straits to Mexico, and thousands of Cubans, many of them exiles, have been coming to this country after the suppression of the revolution, and profitable occupation in its sugar factories. Naturally, they plot and scheme and find a way to overthrow the Spanish rule in Cuba and collect funds from their compatriots all over the island, but this far this money has not seemed to accomplish any more than to support the "head centers" during the period of the Fenian and other Irish agitation.

Some of these exiles show an extraordinary zeal in planning campaigns. It is understood here that one man has organized a little town in southern Georgia has collected a military company, composed not only of Cubans, but including in its membership a lot of young Georgians, and not content with the study of the matter, he has written a letter to France for a season's instruction in the art of war, filled with the notion that he will become the leader in the next revolution.

It is almost twenty years since the suppression of the Cuban revolt, yet the island bears its marks still. The flourishing fortresses that crown the hills are still there, packed with soldiers, and their guns are pointed, not toward the sea, but toward the town. Havana, with its magnificent harbor, nowhere in the world, with the possible exception of Singapore and almost impregnable system of fortifications as those which encircle the city. They could not hope with modern ordnance. A few armaments furnish the only formidable armament.

stores and necessary arms, and with the remainder of his command, he fled to the town of Las Pajas. The day after leaving Trinidad was attacked by the Spanish filibusters, who were in a hurry to capture him. After struggling as long as he could, he was captured and taken to Havana, and on the 17th shot. At first it was reported that he had no trial, but was immediately shot and his body mutilated, and every possible insult offered to his remains by the Cuban population. These statements were contradicted, however, afterward, and it was stated they were properly tried and sentenced, and that after execution their remains were decently interred. Several of them, and Trinidad among them, had written letters to friends at home, in which they agreed that they had been grossly deceived as to the state of public feeling in Cuba, and that, so far as could be perceived, the slightest disposition prevailed among the inhabitants to overthrow the Spanish Government.

However, Lopez was attacked on the 18th, a severe action followed, and though the Spaniards were repulsed, his loss was considerable. He was captured, however, and his remains were decently interred. Several of them, and Trinidad among them, had written letters to friends at home, in which they agreed that they had been grossly deceived as to the state of public feeling in Cuba, and that, so far as could be perceived, the slightest disposition prevailed among the inhabitants to overthrow the Spanish Government.

The next uprising of importance for the liberation of Cuba from Spanish rule was the revolution of 1895. It began in 1895 and ended in 1896. It was a ten long years of fighting passed before Spain succeeded in crushing the revolutionists who survived the battles of the revolution. The revolutionists, however, though forced to lay down their arms, did not cease to fight. They continued to fight, and the revolutionists were not admitted that Spain had beaten them.

The present Governor-General of Cuba is Rodriguez Arias, a portly, genial person, a good liver and man inclined to extol himself or to acquire animosity among his subordinates. He also gave up his easy mode of making money, and he has been in the country since he has been in power, and he has been in power since he has been in power.

CAPE HATTIAN, Hayti, April 4.—President Hippolyte and his cabinet have determined to meet an uprising of revolutionists. With the cabinet the President has decided to go to Port de Paix, near this place. The government troops have also been ordered in camp here. They will be sufficiently strong to repel any force the revolutionary party can raise.

PAVAKA, Colombia, April 4.—Mail advices confirm the news of the triumph of the revolutionists in Honduras; fighting continues among nomadic bands, but the encounters are unimportant. Gen. Bonilla is in power and is supported now by many of the former Leivas' former adherents.

JUDGE MORRIS ON ZIEGENHEIM.

A Protege of the Collector Fined by the Police Judge.

"I recognize my error," gives Henry Ziegenheim the right to break the law," said Judge Morris in the First District Police Court yesterday, and the jury hearing the case promptly found the prisoner, a protege of the collector, guilty and assessed him in a $200 fine for selling liquor without a license.

The case for selling liquor without a license was heard in the First District Police Court yesterday. The collector of the saloon at 585 Easton avenue, was charged with the too common offense of selling liquor without a license. The day before the collector was fined $200 for selling liquor without a license. The day before the collector was fined $200 for selling liquor without a license.

The same day that the collector was fined $200 for selling liquor without a license, the collector was fined $200 for selling liquor without a license. The collector was fined $200 for selling liquor without a license.

A Heavy Vote Pollled at the Election—The Contest in Belleville.

A heavy vote was polled at the election here today. Voting began as soon as the polls opened and progressed steadily and rapidly until noon. From 12 o'clock until the closing of the polls at 6 o'clock, balloting was somewhat lighter. Almost the full vote of the city was polled. It is estimated that more than 3,500 ballots were cast. The administration and anti-administration factions both had full tickets in the field, and the intense rivalry between the numerous candidates tended to make the vote super and might otherwise have been. The result of the election was as follows:

Walter McGarrigan, an engineer, who was injured in the wreck of the Jacksonville Southern road at Edwardsville last night, was brought to this city today and removed to his home at 13 North Seventh street. His injuries are not fatal.

The East St. Louis police were notified today of a burglary committed last night at the store of William Henry in Wann, near Alton. A large sum of money was stolen and the store was left in a state of confusion.

John F. Matz, an old German citizen, died last night at his home on Sixth street near Broadway, aged 85 years. He will be buried in St. Louis tomorrow.

Marine Healey was struck by a locomotive in the yard at Edwardsville last night, and was injured. He was removed to his home on St. Clair avenue. His injuries are not fatal.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Dunn, who died suddenly of a heart attack, was held yesterday at the residence of her son, Michael Dunn, at 1212 Broadway, and was attended by a large number of friends.

John H. Hesse, a native of Germany, was naturalized yesterday in the United States Court. He is a resident of St. Louis and is engaged in the business of a merchant.
